Joe Payne Commission Tier Explanation

January & February 2026 Silver Tier Qualification

Executive Summary

Joe Payne qualifies for Silver tier commission (16%) for both January and February 2026 based on his 3-month rolling average performance metrics. This document breaks down the tier calculation methodology and demonstrates how his activity and revenue metrics meet all Silver tier requirements.

Commission Tier Structure

The AMFG commission model uses a three-tier system based on performance across three key metrics. All three metrics must meet the threshold simultaneously to qualify for a tier.

Metric	Bronze	Silver	Gold
Annual Recurring Revenue (ARR)	$15,000+	$20,000+	$25,000+
Demos per Week	2+	3+	4+
Dials per Week	100+	100+	200+
Commission Rate	13%	16%	19%

Note: New joiners receive a 6-month grace period where their ARR is assumed at $25,000/month for tier calculation purposes, even if actual revenue is lower. This recognizes the ramp-up period required to build a sustainable pipeline.

Key Insights

Consistent Activity Performance

Joe Payne demonstrates strong and consistent activity metrics across both calculation periods. His demos per week (3.77 in Jan, 3.08 in Feb) and dials per week (164 in Jan, 154 in Feb) both comfortably exceed Silver thresholds, showing disciplined sales execution and pipeline development.

Grace Period Impact

The grace period assumption for November ($25,000 assumed ARR) is critical to February's qualification. Without the grace period, February's ARR would be$ 15,258, falling short of the $20,000 Silver threshold. The grace period recognizes that new joiners require time to build their revenue base and ensures they are evaluated fairly during their ramp-up period.

Revenue Trajectory

Joe Payne's actual ARR shows strong growth potential, with October reaching $27,950 and December reaching$ 39,775. January's $0 reflects the timing of deal closures rather than performance issues. February's$ 35,198 demonstrates his ability to maintain high-value deal flow.
